NEOUCOM Awards Doctor of Medicine Degrees
Sixty-six Percent of Graduates to Remain in Ohio

ROOTSTOWN, Ohio –The Northeastern Ohio Universities Colleges of Medicine and Pharmacy (NEOUCOM) welcomed Ohio's newest physicians at a commencement ceremony held May 17 at The University of Akron's E.J. Thomas Performing Arts Center. Sixty-three percent of NEOUCOM's graduating class will remain in Ohio for their residencies. Forty-six percent of the senior class will continue their training in a primary care field such as family practice, internal medicine, pediatrics or obstetrics/gynecology. The remainder of the class selected a service or other specialty such as surgery, emergency medicine or anesthesiology.

"As the public medical school for northeast Ohio, we are delighted that 63 percent of our graduates will remain in Ohio for their residencies. We are so proud of our graduates as they continue their education, becoming highly skilled and compassionate physicians across their chosen specialties. The entire NEOUCOM community congratulates the members of the Class of 2008," says Lois Margaret Nora, M.D., J.D., NEOUCOM president and dean for the College of Medicine.

The Northeastern Ohio Universities Colleges of Medicine and Pharmacy are community-based, public institutions focused on the interdisciplinary training of health professionals, offering both a doctor of medicine (M.D.) and a doctor of pharmacy (Pharm.D.) degree. The colleges' educational consortium includes the Rootstown, Ohio, campus, teaching hospitals, community pharmacies, two boards of health and four northeast Ohio public universities. Through these and other collaborative arrangements, the colleges participate in the Consortium of Eastern Ohio Master of Public Health program and offer graduate-level coursework and research opportunities leading to master's and doctoral degrees in biomedical sciences and biomedical engineering.

A list of graduates awarded doctor of medicine degrees, their hometowns, parents' names, residency placements and specialties, listed by Ohio counties in alphabetical order, followed by students from out-of-state, follows.
